President's Message

*Jan Myers,
CSI, CCPR
President*

Dearest Members,

I hope you all came out to support our CSI chapter by attending the Product Show at the Radisson. We have been doing this show for 38 years and we are quite proud of the quality of the show.

We are having another event that could use your support. From May 2nd to May 5th we are hosting a region conference in Gettysburg. For those of you who are not already aware, it is the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. We could use some more sponsors for various events. This is a way you can contribute and get your name in front of all the attendees from the Mid-Atlantic Region. There are opportunities as low as $150. I took advantage of this opportunity to get my business name in front of the specifiers attending. If you would like to do the same, call Larry Saylor at 717-697-1799.

The second way you could support our chapter is to attend the conference. There are great tours and activities on the agenda, please visit the website at www.csimarc13.org. This is a great opportunity to get to know members from other chapters and make many great new friends. Hope to see all of you there!

We return to our normal meeting on the second Tuesday, April 9 2013 at the Radisson. Same time, same station. Until next time

*Regards,
Jan Myers, CSI, CCPR
President*

From the Editor's Desk

*Tanya Ness,
CSI,
Editor*

Spring is in the air, and time for new beginnings. As many of you know, last month I acquired a new name and have begun a new and exciting chapter in my life. In return, I hope many of you found new and innovative products at the Exhibitor's Show last month. That was just to get everyone warmed up for the Mid-Atlantic Regional Conference in May. Let me encourage you to come out this month and see what exciting things are coming up for your Central Penn CSI Chapter. Please take a moment to review the article provided by Sheldon Wolfe, RA, FCSI, CCS, CCA, CSC and Member's Musing by our local member, Eric Hardenbrook, CSI, CDT. Look forward to seeing everyone on Tuesday!

Curmudgeon's Corner

24/7; gone fishing

My, how things have changed! The brave new world of 24/7 interconnectivity certainly is marvelous; each day brings new ways to learn more about everything, sometimes too many. I'm not going to give you the old line about "When I was a kid, we had to walk two miles to school, through the snow, uphill both ways!" And I'm not going to rail against progress. I am fascinated by new technology and new products, and I still enjoy learning about everything possible.

But I do wonder if we're giving up much of the adventure and fun of life in favor of trying to do as much as possible.

Having said that, I must add, nostalgia is selective memory at its worst; it ignores most of how to more effectively plan, implement and document a construction waste management program during a construction project and its different phases. Become familiar with why properly managing waste is important, and the benefits of building green. Following the presentation, participants will engage in Q&A to discuss case studies related to a variety of project examples.

Learning Objectives: This course will enable attendees to:

- Gain an understanding of statistical data relating to Construction Waste Management
- Analyze the components of construction waste - commonly recycled materials and common end use products
- Describe construction waste management methods, planning, implementation and how it pertains to LEED
- Understand the cost elements of diverting waste compared to costs of waste disposal – through case study review
- Review examples and resources helpful to designing and implementing a successful waste management plan.

Who should attend this course? Builders, remodelers, home inspectors, home owners, contractors, architects, engineers, and anyone interested in learning more about construction waste management and how it is used to reduce our impact on the environment.

Rick Frescatore presides over Frescatore Consulting, LLC, which was established in February 2005, and has been providing outstanding waste management and recycling services for the construction, industrial, and commercial business sector's ever since. Its specialty is in the area of Total Construction Waste Management and Recycling Consulting Services, as well as other consulting services, supporting the LEED® (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) Green Building Rating System™, developed by the U.S. Green Building Council.

Its objective is to provide simplification, cost reduction, value enhancement, and a sustainable pathway for clients. Many general contractors utilize Frescatore Consulting services exclusively, regardless of where the project is. The business is located in historic Columbia, Lancaster County, PA, and its website is www.frescatoreconsulting.com. In addition to the consulting business, Mr. Frescatore's family more recently founded Fresco Green Solution Center, located at 1520 Commerce Drive, Lancaster PA 17601 (www.frescogreen.com).

Before establishing his consulting business, Mr. Frescatore's extensive career was spent as a local executive with Waste Management Inc. As General Manager, then Pennsylvania Region Manager, for the recycling sector of the business, Mr. Frescatore was a business development specialist, whose responsibilities included operations, financial, and marketing for six recycling facilities in Pennsylvania, as well as consultative duties supporting hauling division sales teams in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and Northern Virginia.

Mr. Frescatore recognized "the missing piece" of the puzzle and decided to form his consulting company. The simple fact of the matter is that waste hauling companies are in the business of building revenue. That revenue is part of the total cost of construction. It is counterproductive for the waste industry to "reduce" their revenue, through a cost minimization focus. Mr. Frescatore realized that an independent company partnering with companies to focus on "Solid Waste Cost Reduction and Landfill Diversion" was absolutely necessary. More recently, the company has expanded it's services to include consulting and administrative documentation services to support Construction Companies, Owners, and Developers, tasked with building a "green" building.

Minutes of Board of Directors Meeting

Chris Atwood, in absence of appointed recording secretary

Date: Tuesday, March 12, 2013

Time: About 5:10 p.m.

Location: Offices of Gannett Fleming, 207 Senate Ave., Camp Hill, PA

Voting Members Present (6):

J. Myers, W. Brightbill, J. Groff, R. Loftin, C. Beauduy and J. Morgan.

Voting Members Absent (7):

E. Hardenbrook, S. Steffan,

T. Ritter, D. Scruggs, J. Burkholder, L. Saylor, and J. Kingsborough.

Non-Voting Committee Chairs/Co-Chairs Present:

W. Deck, J. Turicik, C. Atwood.

President Myers called the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the Construction Specifications Institute to order. A quorum of voting members was not present. In the absence of interim appointed recording secretary Mr. Cluck, Mr. Atwood agreed to record the minutes.

Opening Comments:

President Jan Myers opened a discussion about what constituted a quorum, noting that there seemed to be some confusion over whether it should be 7 or 8. Reference to the bylaws was needed and as a copy was not on hand, no conclusion was reached. [Chapter Bylaws Article 4, Section 2 states that "the Board shall be comprised of fourteen members, and shall include: president, president-elect, one vice president, secretary, recording secretary, treasurer, six elected directors, a publications editor and an advisory member. The advisory member shall be the immediate past president." Section 7 states that "A majority of the board shall constitute a quorum."]

President Myers also held a discussion regarding the need for nominations to fill the three electable Board positions that will be opening up at the end of the current fiscal year, the position of recording secretary, possibly the position of secretary, and an awards chair.

Minutes: Minutes of the February 12, 2013 meeting were reviewed. It was noted that Brunski should not be on the list of voting members (though the number voting members present was 8), and that the number of absent voting members should be changed from 3 to 5. No other exceptions were noted. As a quorum was not present, acceptance was postponed to a future meeting.

Treasurer's Report: Bill Brightbill presented the Financial Status Report and Balance Sheet for the end of February 2013.

President-Elect: No report

Vice President: Bob Loftin reported on his experience at LOS.

Secretary: No report

Past President/Advisor: John Groff asked about the status of the Chapter planning calendar, and indicated he would discuss this with the Vice President (Eric Hardenbrook).

Budget/Finance: No report

Bylaws: No report

Certification: John Groff reported that the CDT preparation class was moving along.

Educational/Technical: Bob Loftin reported the committee was ready for the Wednesday seminars

Member's Musing

Being a member of the Central Pennsylvania chapter of CSI has been a tremendous boon for me. I didn't know what to expect when I started the CSI exam prep course. I signed up for the course because I was looking for ways to better myself and further my career in the architecture field. This prep course is one of the most accessible paths that I've found to joining professional organizations. Passing the CDT and joining this chapter has definitely helped my career, but also allowed me to gain a great list of folks I can connect with.

My favorite part of membership is attending the meetings each month and just listening to the other members. I jokingly call this "story time", but there is real value in discussing projects, office procedures and current industry topics with other members. I have learned as much from those chats as I have from many other sources. The monthly meeting topics add to the mix as well. There are myriad learning opportunities in CSI. Joining CSI, and the Central Pennsylvania Chapter in particular, has been a fantastic help in making connections and furthering my career. I have not only gained knowledge, but also gained connections with great folks across the industry in this area and beyond.

during the Exhibitor's Show. The morning seminar has 57 attendees reserved.

Electronics/Communications: No report (see Editor)

Exhibitor's Show: Jan Myers reported that the booth count was down from last year's number.

Hospitality: No report

Long-Range Planning: No report

Membership: No report.

Programs: Chris Atwood reported that a program for April was actively being pursued, and that the program for May will be a panel discussion on "Positive Approaches to Effective Communication Between Design Professionals and Cost Estimators," conducted as part of a joint meeting with the local ASPE chapter (American Society of Professional Estimators).

Directors: No reports.

Old Business:

(8-1) Support for charities; possible 50/50 – discussed possibility of Logan or someone else running 50/50 raffle ticket sales at the check-in table

(3-3) Refund Policy for Programs at Show – Closed.

(6-12) Joint meetings – Atwood indicated the May meeting will be joint w/ ASPE. Item may be closed.

(12-11) Bar costs review – The chapter pays $45 for this service at each meeting; discussed possible expansion of our social half-hour to 3/4 or 1 hour and corresponding increase in bar time availability.

(12-11) 50th Anniversary – Brightbill reported that he and Jim Frey were co-chairs, had visited Liberty Forge and Green Valley, concluding that Liberty Forge would be a good venue for the celebration; set date as August 13 (Tues.) evening; golf available beforehand for those interested; a repeating slide show is to be worked on; booklet also.

(3-12) Slate of Officers – see Opening Comments

New Business: None.

the facts. It's easy to say, "Things were so much better in the '50s, when I could buy [just about anything] for so much less!" But when you consider the average wage in 1955 - $4,500, or about two bucks an hour - that price might not look so good anymore.

Another problem with that line of thinking is that people in 1955 probably had wonderful memories (or illusions) about how good things were in 1950, and those people likely longed for life at the turn of the century, and so on. At some point, then, we're looking at life not only without smart phones and texting, but also without packaged food and good medical care. Not for me, thanks.

Still, some good things may have been lost along the way. In our quest for speed and efficiency, it seems we no longer have time for simply enjoying the journey. Consider sport fishing; much of the romance and art of fishing has been lost. Once a contest between man and fish, the results depended not only on the mood of the fish, which is true yet today, but on the knowledge and skills of the person doing the fishing. Though the fish always has been at a disadvantage, the contest was a bit more even in the past; it certainly required a lot more on the part of the angler.

A successful angler probably fished only a few lakes. Not only was travel much more difficult and expensive, but success required a knowledge of the lake, something that was acquired only after much time and experimentation. Knowing the fish and their habits were also important. When do they travel, where do they go, what do they like to eat at different times of year? This knowledge was best known by those who fished the lakes regularly. It also was passed on in conversation, with obvious limits, and by various publications. Even then, learning about a given lake took a fair amount of effort.

Today, in contrast, anyone who can afford a smart phone can access virtually all that is known about any fish in any lake at any time of year. Other technologies have seen similar progress. While the fisherman of long ago rowed a small boat from the dock, and later used a small outboard motor, the modern rig is a huge boat with padded, rotating seats, entertainment center, live wells with oxygenation, GPS, fish finder, and, in addition to a trolling motor, an engine suitable for a small barge.

We still share a romanticized image of the fishing experience, even though now it often is compressed into a series of frenzied activities. Load the boat, ignore the local lakes and drive a hundred miles, launch the boat, ask Siri where the best fishing spot is, fire up the 90 horse Merc and get there as fast as possible, use the fish finder, deploy the trolling motor or the anchor, and throw in a line. If nothing happens in first five minutes, repeat as needed. If catching a fish is the entire purpose of the trip, I suppose that works. I'm not an avid angler, but I have enjoyed many fishing trips. Some of the best were halcyon days when we threw in a line, relaxed back in the seats, let the sun soak in, listened to the loons and the water lapping onto the hull - and didn't get a strike.

A recent Rick Steves episode reminded me of our 2009 trip to Europe. I've seen some of the recent additions to information accessible by smart phone; it's now possible to stroll through many cities, staring at the phone (we need a new word for these things!), reading about the history of the city, the unusual piece of art in the next building, the world-class but inexpensive restaurant on the next block, the museum hidden from view to the right, when the next train departs and what the fare is, and more, all without talking to a single person.

As this progresses, will travel come to the same end as fishing trips? Except for the rich and famous, who have the time and money for ocean cruises, getting to any distant place requires a bit of high-speed travel, but once there, will we take the time to see the surroundings, or simply walk along, head down, and miss the adventure of discovery? If we're no longer required to ask the locals for directions, will we sacrifice the opportunity to meet new people and learn what they have to offer? Will we become fishers of factoids, with the goal of collecting as many as possible, or will we still take time to smell the roses?

"Everyone knows the difference between the Eiffel Tower and the Leaning Tower, but what distinguishes your trip is the experience you have." Rick Steves
